

Dec Group inaugurates new assembly facility in India

November 15, 2023 - Dec Bectochem, established in 2020, is a joint venture between Dec Switzerland and Bectochem's Containment division. This partnership provides Dec Group with a stronger presence in the Indian market and allows us to offer top-tier Swiss technologies. With Bectochem Containment Division's expertise in customized containment solutions and 20 years of experience, we are able to expand our operations and introduce new technologies in powder milling, blending, and handling in India and parts of Asia.

We are proud to announce the inauguration of our brand new assembly unit in India! Our Swiss-based Managing Director, Yves Dietrich, personally cut the ribbon, marking this momentous occasion.

Our Indian subsidiary DecBectochem currently operates two assembly & manufacturing facilities along with engineering offices located in Mumbai and Baroda.

The opening of the new facility represents yet another significant milestone in our journey to deliver international quality products to our valued customers in India and the adjacent region. We are excited to uphold our commitment to excellence. This state-of-the-art facility has been meticulously designed to optimize and streamline our assembly process. We are determined to ensure that every product we create meets the highest quality standards.

At Dec Group we always strive to push boundaries and remain at the forefront of innovation. The inauguration of this new assembly unit in Ankleshwar is a testament to our ongoing commitment to growth and customer satisfaction.
